Neutral Position:

Rule: 5.9.2.3: Stalling when kicking out from a lower leg hold in the neutral position.

Q1. When in the neutral position if a wrestler kicks out of a low leg hold and goes beyond the OB cylinder he is to be called for stalling. But what if he is already outside of the cylinder when he gets into the lower leg hold and then kicks out? Some say to call the stall, but the rule states "going out of the wrestling area".

Rule: 2.6: Takedown, near-side cradle from the neutral position, when to award the takedown.

Q2. Question: If wrestler A and B are in the neutral position and wrestler A secures a near-side cradle on wrestler B, when should you award points for a takedown to wrestler A.

Q3. Recap on the new "interlocking fingers" situation

Q4. Update on OOB stalling situation calls primarily on what to look for to determine "action" calls vs. stalling calls.

Offensive & Defensive Stalling situations:

Q1. Offensive wrestler (A) drops down to one leg on defensive wrestler and doesn't move up. Defensive wrestler (B) reaches back after wrestler A has dropped down on the leg to pressure down on wrestler A's head. What's the call?

Q2. Recap of the difference between the offensive wrestler dropping down below the buttocks vs. the defensive causing the offensive wrestler to drop down below the buttocks. When to start your 5 second stall count and when to allow action to continue without the 5 second stall count occurring.
